Given the Covid pandemic scenario and its consequences, a vast number of students, especially from the underprivileged sections of society, who study in government-run schools, may be finding it very difficult to keep up with the stressful online studies regime. This may be due to little or no access to a computer or even a smartphone and also because of financial inability to afford data beyond a point. This will make it difficult for such students to take advantage of Engage With Science Features. It is therefore planned to have an IVR-driven mechanism, which will have voice-to-text middleware, and can store data and accrue points for students who call in and participate in quizzes etc. The Engage With Science / India Science OTT platform will need to shake hands through an API to integrate points and incentives as well as login credentials inherited from the IVR service provider.
