IMD's National Weather Service is also available in the UMANG mobile app from today

National Weather Services of India Meteorological Department (IMD) today launched UMANG Official App in the presences of UMANG Director, Neeraj Kumar. Weather forecasting advisories as alerts and warnings via UMANG App would now be reaching a large number of people of India including farmers enabling them to plan farming operations effectively and minimize crop damage under adverse weather conditions.

UMANG app is jointly developed by Ministry of Electronics and Information Technology (MEIT) and National e-Governance Division (NeGD). The Key features of the App is to provide unified platforms to bring together all government departments and their services on a single platform to provide better and easier services to citizens.
